LASTING IMPRESSIONS

Spanning decades of timeless design, our collection of furniture, lighting and interior objects is grounded by a commitment to preserving classic icons. Retrieved from original sketches and previously only available to a few fortunate individuals, the designs of Viggo Boesen and Hvidt & Mølgaard among others, have now been produced on a large scale for the first time ever.

With the latest addition of two new collections from the mid-century pioneer Robin Day, our portfolio of international designers continues to grow and evolve. Our classics collection includes the Bauhaus inspired works of Arne Jacobsen, whose pieces consider the interplay between form and function, as well as the iconic and aesthetically groundbreaking designs of Verner Panton.

Bellevue AJ7

Arne Jacobsen

Educated at the Royal Danish Academy of Fine Arts, School of Architecture, Arne Jacobsen (1902-1971) helped define the mantra for Modernism with his clean, pure lines, coupled with classic craftsmanship.
One of his most celebrated buildings is the SAS Royal Hotel from 1960, now called the Radisson Blu Royal Hotel. Jacobsen designed every detail – from sculptural furnishings, such as his elegant Swan™ and Egg™ chairs, to the lighting, textiles, ashtrays and cutlery.

Arne Jacobsen & Flemming Lassen

Prominent representatives of Danish Modernism and known for their Functionalist approach to design, Arne Jacobsen (1902-1971) and Flemming Lassen (1902-1984) are considered among Scandinavia's most influential architects. Working together on a number of projects, they conceived the award-winning "House of the Future": a spiral-shaped home replete with a helicopter pad, a conveyor tube for mail and a kitchen stocked with ready-made meals. They went on to design numerous other projects together and individually, which brought them international acclaim.

Jørgen Wolff

A cabinetmaker by trade, Jørgen Wolff (1932-2003) is known for establishing a multifaceted practice. Working from his studio in north Copenhagen to manufacture and restore furniture, Wolff built a collection of his own designs which included lighting, furniture, and home objects. His designs were frequently exhibited at the National Leauge of Danish Art Handcraft and the Cabinet Makers Guild Exhibition in Copenhagen, however few of his pieces made it into the mainstream of contemporary design, until today.

Hvidt & Mølgaard

Peter Hvidt (1916-1986) and Orla Mølgaard-Nielsen (1907-1993) were pioneers of Danish mid-century design and the founders of Copenhagen-based firm Hvidt & Mølgaard. Renowned for the simplicity of their works, the duo established a simple and precise aesthetic, designing countless pieces of furniture over the years. Their forward-thinking approach to industrialized production paved the way for a new movement that drew upon classical craftsmanship techniques to make affordable, beautifully crafted home furnishings.

Robin Day

Robin Day (1915-2010) grew up in the furniture making town of High Wycombe, where he attended a technical institution and art school, before winning a scholarship to the Royal College of Art in London. He honed his skills in many design-related professions during World War II, before fulfilling his dream of becoming a furniture designer.

Day continued to shape the post-war and modern landscape in Britain for the remainder of his life, with a lasting belief that designs such as public seating could contribute to the quality of peoples' lives. His later work, such as the world's first Polypropylene Chair and the Toro benches used on London Underground, endure as iconic pieces of British design.

Verner Panton

A respected figure at the forefront of Danish design, Verner Panton (1926-1998) aspired to be a painter before studying architecture at the Royal Academy of Fine Arts in Copenhagen. After an apprenticeship with architect/designer Arne Jacobsen, Panton pursued a path in furniture and interior design. It was during this part of his career that he became famous for his originality and tireless experimentation, pushing the boundaries of design with innovative materials, bold colours, and unconventional forms that transformed contemporary interiors.

Viggo Boesen

Despite his quiet presence in the industry, Viggo Boesen (1907-1985) contributed greatly to Denmark's signature design aesthetic in the 1930s. His original ideas, organic shapes and expressive design language were precursors to Denmark's stance on modernism in the decades that followed, reflecting Scandinavian 'Funkis' style, a Nordic take on Art Deco. In contrast to mass-produced materials and the more minimal and restrained approach of the Bauhaus school of thought, Boesen brought a soft, warm and almost naive aspect to design, ushering in new forms of upholstered furniture.

Jørn Utzon

Jørn Utzon (1918-2008) is perhaps best-known for designing the Sydney Opera House in the 1960s, where the building's façade appears different from any given angle – exemplifying his organic concept of architecture and expressive sculptural style.

Utzon's fascination with architectural legends from the Mayan, Moroccan and Asian cultures led to what he termed "Additive Architecture", a principle of design that can be seen throughout his design methodology and creative practice.

Mnemonic

The Mnemonic collection is composed of five refined scented products including a hand soap, hand lotion, hand balm, scented candle and room spray – each one grounded in a trio of natural aromas. Mnemonic's collection features three captivating, nature inspired scents: After the Rain, Into the Moor, and Turning Tide.

Mnemonic MNC6

After the Rain
Fir balsam | Cedarwood | Cardamom
This rich scent is characterised by warm, woody notes of fir balsam and cedarwood, capturing the scent of fallen pine needles on the forest floor, whilst notes of cardamom add a hint of herbal freshness.

Into the Moor
Tree moss | Heather | Galbanum oil
This scent intertwines the earthy structures of tree moss and heather, stirring memory of raw, untamed topography, complemented by notes of spicy green galbanum oil.

Turning Tide
Salty seaweed | Tonka bean | Clary sage
This herbaceous scent adds layers of contrast through salty seaweed and the subtle sweetness of tonka bean, whilst the addition of clary sage introduces a harmonious floral element to complete the aroma profile.
